Continuation of 5. does NOT place the application in condition for allowanc because: Ankey ('499 Patent) clearly teaches the limitations recit d in the claims. In r gards to the argument of claims 1 and 10, specifically regarding the limitation, "source has transparent access to the network via the gateway device", Ankey teaches that sourc and d stination can be duplicate or interchangeably comprise "user terminal, computer, application program within a computer, or other handling or data communication device" (see col.1, lines 12-18). Ankey further adds that "devices themselves typically are referred to as users, in the context of the network" (see col.1, lines 18-19). Such teachings are apparent to one of ordinary skill in the art. Therefore, the reference location provided in the final office action (August 13, 2004), col 6, lines 28-29, clearly teach that the "intercommunication between the switch an the TAMS are transparent to any of the above mentioned devices or program. Claims must be given their broadest reasonable interpretation (see MPEP2111 and In re Hyatt 211 F.3d 1367, 1372, 54 USPQ2d 1664, 1667 (Fed. Cir. 2000)). Regarding the limitation "accounting", clearly Ankey teaches and suggests this limitation (see col. 11, lines 15-21 and col. 12, lines 30-47). Finally, in response to the arguments. Finally in response to the argument of claim 17, specifically the element of "gateway device enables the source to communicate with a network without requiring the source computer to include network software configured for the network", a preamble is generally not accorded any patentable weight where it merely recites the purpose of a process or the intended use of a structure, and where the body of the claim does not depend on the preamble for completeness but, instead, the process steps or structural limitations ar able to stand alone. See In re Hirao, 535 F.2d 67, 190 USPQ 15 (CCPA 1976) and Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d 150, 152, 88 USPQ 478, 481 (CCPA 1951). However, Ankey does teach and suggest this limitation (see col.2, lines 11-38 and col.5, line 46 to col.6, lin 18). There is no suggestion that a software is necessary and therefore, meets the claimed limitation.
